Memorial Day Observances.

All were glad to welcome the nice, bright, clear day which dawned Monday morning under a clear blue sky, although clouds came up during the day but only to beautify the whole of nature, making this day one of the finest for the observance of Memorial day.

At 9.30 the members of Co. D, the veterans, sons of veterans and Woman's Relief Corps marched from G. A. R. hall to Pine Grove cemetery, lead by the Norway Band and accompanied by a large number of friends.

Prayer was offered by Rev. J. E. Whitmore at the cemetery, and Rev. E. C. Wentworth made a short but impressive address, who spoke of the bravery of the soldiers, the sacrifice they all made and the wonderful progress of the nation.

Rev. B. S. Rideout read President Lincoln's address at Gettysburg. The soldiers then decorated the graves of the departed comrades.

The cemetery presented a beautiful sight as the procession of loved ones, dressed in white, were seen walking through the rows of graves, many of which were adorned with flowers of many varieties.

After the decorating of the graves the processions formed and marched to Eastfield cemetery, where Rev. E. C. Wentworth offered the prayer. Hon. M. L. Kimball delivered the address in the absence of Assistant Attorney General C. P. Barnes. Mr. Kimball said among other remarks that he was to speak in behalf of the soldiers of the late war and that, while they did not engage in blood shed, they experienced some of the hardships of a southern camp with its ravages by disease, thus they could gain a far better idea of what the soldiers had to endure during the long four years of struggle.

The graves were decorated and then they returned to headquarters, where dinner was served by the Woman's Relief Corps.

At 1.30 the line was again formed and marched to the Opera House, where Memorial services were held. Rev. B. S. Rideout offered prayer, which was followed by a song by the primary chorists. The children sang the hymn, "The starry flag," and received much applause. There was a reading by Mary E. Chaffin and a song by the pupils of the High school led by Annette Washburn.

Col. Ambrose Richardson then introduced Rev. M. C. Ward, who delivered the address of the afternoon. In opening Mr. Ward commended the fine appearance the veterans had made that day, and congratulated the town on having such smart veterans. Memory is so vivid that Lincoln's boys are boys again to-day.

All over the land to-day a grateful people honors the nation's living heroes and heaps flowers where the veterans have fallen asleep and in the soil their bodies consecrate, plants the flag for which they fought. Hardly a cemetery nestling among the hills but its breezes are bright with the flutter of little flags and perfumed with flowers.

America's children will never fail in honor and patriotism so long as they love to honor these patriots, to sing the songs of the flag and remember the Memorial Day to keep it holy. Your local militia company deserves your interest and praise to-day. It was one of the first to respond to the call of Lincoln and Maine's war Governor Washburn. The flag was hauled down at Fort Sumpter, April 14, 1861, and April 27 this company was on its way to its defense, in which Norway boys won distinction as to Captain George L. Beal, earned promotion to Brevet Major General. In the Spanish war it was equally ready and its men worthy, but its Captain, Frank T. Bartlett, was promoted like so many soldiers to the home on high, where the nations shall not learn war any more.

The war began with a quarrel between the north and south, mainly over slavery. Slavery robbed the white and black man of their noblest qualities. A moral sentiment against slavery arose in the north. The south took refuge in the doctrine of state rights, that the right of the state to rule itself is greater than the right of the nation to interfere in its affairs. The Constitution left the question open.

Were we a free and independent union of states, or were we states free and independent of each other? The south formed the Confederacy. The north said "This must not be." If sections with a grievance may secede, then the government is a failure and opens the way for any immorality, to segregate and form an independent state.

Sumpter was fired upon and patriots enlisted for the Union. One-third of Norway's adult male population went to the war. Over 500 went and all deserved honor. Norway had one brevet major general, one assistant surgeon, ten captains and five lieutenants besides many commissioned officers. Sumner H. Needham in the sixth Mass. was one of the first three to fall in Baltimore. Ten more fell in battle, seven died of wounds and twenty-seven of disease, forty-four in all. And in the Spanish war four died in the service as many more on returning home and others lost their health.

The record of the 1st, 10th and 29th regiments reaching over the entire war, in which were so many from this vicinity, is written in letters of living light. The fighting 5th capturing more battle flags than any other Maine regiment and the fighting 17th always ready for the hardest places in battle have grand records. Praise-worthy are they all.

Each of the 1st, 10th, 29th and 32d, each of which records valiant deeds of Norway men.

Mr. Ward told several stories of the earnestness and heroism of the men on the field, and of the noblest movements of our generals, which show them unsurpassed in history. History records no grander character than the American volunteer patriot. If there is a grander it is the loved ones at home whose spirit gave and sustained the soldier to victory.

The speaker's praise for the soldiers of the Spanish war was equally hearty. The intelligence and determination, the courage and ability shown at Santiago, at San Juan Hill, at Manila Bay, El Caney and Cavite astonished the armies of Europe and will make these names live in history. Our Navy distinguished itself for several feats. It fought the only battle in history where two world powers met and one fleet destroyed or sunk every ship of the enemy. Yet the Spanish veterans speak modestly of their hardships and the glorious results of their achievements.

The message of Memorial Day is not to praise or glorify war. The sufferings of the soldiers, and the sufferings and bereavements of homes make eloquent appeal for peace. Now there is a permanent peace tribunal at The Hague, where any dispute may be settled with justice. Public sentiment decrees peace for the nation to seek justice and not force.

The great message of Memorial Day is that we should feel kindly to the southern people. The Union patriot pitied and honored the Confederate whose life, home and property he was compelled to destroy. You fought not for the north but for the nation. You fought for Union and it is for us to be dedicated to making that Union real in a united and sympathetic people.

The Chapel School Memorial. Memorial day was observed Friday, May 28, at the Chapel schoolhouse for the first time in history. But owing to the rain storm, they were repeated again Saturday, to which about thirty visitors were present. Great credit was due to the teacher, Elsie M. Buck. The exercises were as follows:

The new Memorial day ... Pearl C. French To the coming rulers ... Anna S. Buck The blue and the gray ... Eva Morse The red, white and blue ... The colors ... The events of Washington life ... School To help ... Chester G. French My soldier ... Leslie Morse Little Annie Britton ... Leslie Morse Our hero's dead ... Fannie Buck Our flag ... School Singing America ... By all

The exercises were opened by music given by members of the Macintoshes' quorum band; also music given by Messrs. Knop which was highly appreciated. Dr. Morse and Calvin Hussey members of G. A. R. were present.

After the exercises all marched to the cemetery with bouquets of flowers which had been thoughtfully gathered, and there the flower offerings were distributed.

A Surprise. The Baptist Ladies' Aid, Sunday school and numerous church friends took Rev. and Mrs. Whitmore by surprise at their home on Pine street, Tuesday evening. Arthur Littlefield, superintendent of the S. S., presented them with a dinner both Mr. Whitmore was deeply touched and showed his appreciation in a few pleasing words, at the close of which "Blest be the Tie that binds" was sung.

The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games and attempts at mesmerism. Ice cream and cake were served by the circle after which the party adjourned to the hall, where the church organ, which they took with them, stood. The organists, Mrs. DeCosta, presided and several hymns were sung with a vigor after which good-nights were said. Mr. Whitmore said he should never forget the evening and surely all present thought the same.

Veranda Club Notes. The supper given last Thursday evening at G. A. R. hall by the Veranda club was a great success. There was large attendance to both the supper and promenade and a good sum realized. It has been requested that another supper be held in the near future and will be decided upon at the meeting of the club.

The next promenade will be held at G. A. R. hall, Thursday evening, June 10, with music by Mr. and Mrs. John Lamb.

Hospitals Have Nerves.

Off Days When Everything and Everybody Goes Wrong.

Three women in a popular New York room the other afternoon had just welcomed a belated friend. As the newcomer received her cup of tea her hand shook so that the china rattled.
"That's what comes of being in a hospital on one of its bad days," she said with a little laugh. "Every nerve I have is quivering."

"Did anything happen?" asked a particularly placid member of the group.

"Happen! Something always happens in a hospital. But the queer thing about it is that no matter what happens the general atmosphere will be quite calm and cheerful until all of a sudden
a day comes when the whole situation seems to be as I am now, all of a nervous quiver."

"You know I've been spending most of my time lately with my mother in hospital. She is getting along nicely and I read to her or we talk, and occasionally I hear the nurses call in the rooms near hers and bring back news to her of her neighbors, most of whom she has never seen."

"Generally there is something rather restful to me in being there. The nurses seem so quick and cheerful, the doctor comes with his morning joke, one sees flowers and visitors going to the different rooms and one has a feeling of hopefulness about everybody."

"One gets used to even the most of the disinfectants and to the occasional moans. If these are especially bad you say cheerfully:

"Somebody coming out from under the anesthetic. He'll feel better soon."

"You hear a nurse humming and sing along the hall, and on mother's floor there is a young fellow, operated on for appendicitis a little while ago, who whistles softly when he can't think of anything else to do. All the doors stand open, and the whole life of the institution seems to be going smoothly and pleasantly."

"Then all of a sudden everything is changed. I knew this morning the moment I got above the first floor that things were not so well."

"Most of the doors were closed.
Mother was trying in vain to tell two nurses how to place her in a comfortable position. They couldn't get her fixed right, or course they couldn't. That was the day when nothing was right for anybody."

"She let them go when I came in, but she was in the state of nerves where she jumped almost out of her bandages
when a nurse dropped a dish somewhere down the hall. Nurses always drop things on such days anyway."

"I hadn't been in the room two minutes before a waiting maid began next door. The two rooms had a communication, and in the room next to mine it all that is sensible it should have been put there I don't know. At any rate it made the moans from next door quite as audible as if they had been in our own room."

"And they were such unescapable moans, long and wailing, and mingled with broken exclamations, that you couldn't help trying to interpret, though you didn't want to know what they were. I had left the door into the hall open, and I could hear the waiting maid begin to groan that somebody else across the hall joined, but with little staccato grunts and sighs that you could hear all over the floor."

"I went out to the door to close it. A nurse rushed by with a nervous, preoccupied expression. The house doctor passed with scarcely a good morning."

"I could hear the bells ringing in the nurse's room at the end of the hall, as if every patient on the floor had a fever,
the push button meant to keep it there till a response came."

"I went back into the room, but the moaning next door went on and on till I thought I should scream myself. I had left the transom open and I could hear anything unusual in the way of operations, or if any patient had died or anything really out of the ordinary happened. Not a thing! It was just a bad day."

"They come about once in so often and it's like a zoo there. You've been in a menagerie when a sort of wave of unrest goes through it, haven't you? It spreads from cage to cage until all the animals are howling, or growling, or sneezing, and even the keepers get nervous and the keepers are cross and there is a general powwow."

"Well," with a sigh of exhaustion,
"that's the way it is in a hospital on a bad day, and this one has tickered me clean out."

SICK HEADACHE.

Sore Stomach, Heartburn, Canker Sore
"Mouth Cured by Mi-o-na." Sick headaches are caused by indigestion and a general disturbed condition of the stomach.

Cure the indigestion, and the headache, nausea, heartburn, sour stomach,
and that "all in" feeling will vanish.
Mi-o-na tablets will cure indigestion or any other stomach trouble. They will relieve almost instantly. Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes drug store, has so much faith in them that he will give you your money back if they don't.

Mi-o-na cures by making the stomach strong enough to produce enough gastric juices to digest all the food you want to eat. It promptly puts new life and energy into the overworked and played-out walls of the stomach.

Use Mi-o-na for a week, and you can eat what you want any time you want it,
and take pleasure in doing so.
Your blood will be richer, redder, purer after taking Mi-o-na, and it only costs 50 cents a large box.

"I was speedily cured of stomach complaint by Mi-o-na. Anything I can say in favor of Mi-o-na is not too strong."

Farm Machinery Essential.

Few people realize that each year
there is made and sold in this country over $100,000,000 worth of farm machinery. And it is all the more surprising that fully half of this goes into the hands of men who do not know how to select it wisely or to keep it properly.

The waste which results runs into millions of dollars annually. But the waste does not stop here for in addition, important manufacturers lose large sums in making and attempting to introduce machinery unsuited to the work it is intended to perform, with a resultant loss to both farmers and manufacturers.

When the Department of Agriculture and State officials began to realize this condition of things, a number of agricultural colleges and experimental stations inaugurated courses of instruction and began systematic experimentation for the purpose of bringing about a general diffusion of intelligence about this feature of farm work.

The Iowa State College was the pioneer in this work and as an illustration of what one experiment accomplished it might be well to cite a specific instance of good brought about. The college began its study of farm machinery with the operation of corn planters, because no single factor contributes more to the yield than securing a uniform stand, and this is impossible if the seed is not planted evenly. The machines for planting corn in hills are intended to drop from three to four grains, yet farmers have been buying, and implement manufacturers manufacturing and selling planters without any definite knowledge as to how they behave in this respect.

In making the test all of the leading machines were included. It brought out the following facts: That no planter will drop evenly unless the grains have been graded. The introduction of seed-grain graders followed and was an immediate,
important practical gain to agriculture.

Manufacturers of this kind of machinery were included. It brought out

Free Trial Bottles Sagwa,

The Stomach Medicine

Taken Before Meals

experience that this is a fact.

In the various New England towns
where the Kickapoo Indian exhibition has been held, the sale of Sagwa has been the largest in those towns where the most people called and got samples.
That is because Sagwa has superior merit, and has cured all kinds of stomach and liver ailments. The free trial bottle demonstrates this to the people who tried it, so they immediately bought the regular bottles of Sagwa of their druggists. This is what makes the enormous sale for Kickapoo Sagwa in the towns where these Indian exhibitions have been held.

It is all just as simple as a child's primer. Sagwa is a simple vegetable medicine. That is the best kind of medicine. It acts in a very simple way—so simple that people who do not understand the theory of its action wonder how it can accomplish so much.

We have explained above how it acts when it is taken before a meal, because we want everybody to understand its principle, because its principle is right.
The principle of helping nature to help herself is absolutely right. Kickapoo Sagwa does just what is needed. Any one who doubts it need only to come to the Kickapoo demonstration and get a free trial bottle and take the proper dose at the proper length of time before each meal, and then watch results.

No restriction is placed upon the number of people who may call at Frank Kimball's Drug Store and get these trial bottles of Sagwa. One man may be suffering with stomach trouble—he is welcome to a trial bottle. Another man may have suffered for years with sick headaches. So many sick headaches come from indigestion and other stomach ailments that that man is most welcome to a trial bottle of Sagwa. Still another man may have what he calls
"liver complaint," or kidney trouble, or "inflammation of the bladder," or lung bago, or rheumatism, or bad blood, or scrofulous eczema, or sleeplessness, or nervousness. No matter what ailment you think you have, you can get a free trial bottle of Kickapoo Sagwa for the asking.

Another Kickapoo theory is that the stomach is, in a way, more important than all the other organs of the body, because almost all diseases start from the stomach. If you could always have perfect digestion, then other functions would almost never become deranged or other organs diseased.

Take, for example, the dreaded disease of Tuberculosis. Many people believe that tuberculosis, or consumption, is due almost wholly to lack of proper nutrition, coupled with lack of sufficient fresh air. At Saranac Lake, N. Y., where the famous Dr. Trudeau has cured himself of consumption, and then built up a great sanatorium, in which he has cured many hundreds of people of consumption, practically his whole treatment consists of keeping the consumptive out of doors, where he can get all the fresh air he can breathe; feeding him all of the simple food that he can digest, like raw eggs, milk, etc., and sleeping as long as possible every night.

Don't be misled now. Don't jump at the conclusion that we have said that Kickapoo Sagwa is a remedy for consumption. We do not say that. Consumption is a germ, or infectious, disease. However, a main part of the most successful treatment known for curing consumption is to help nature to digest and absorb just as much pure nutriment as possible, and in addition to get all of the quiet rest and all of the pure air available.

Sagwa taken before meals assists nature to digest food in a natural way.
A trial bottle quickly shows this. When you take the proper dose before meals, you become hungry. That is a sign that it is working in a natural way. On account of the condition of your stomach
you may have to wait a few minutes longer than other people after taking it before your appetite comes, but don't be impatient, and when you get hungry
then don't eat too much.

Every city contains a great many people who eat far too much. If they could work out of doors, where they get plenty of physical exercise, they could eat as much as they do now and it probably would not hurt them. But they sit at a desk, or take almost no exercise, and then eat as if trying to kill themselves.
They get sallow and fat, or possibly it works just the other way and makes them thin. They are sick, bilious and grouchy. What they need is not some violent medicine which is claimed to cure them in some miraculous artificial way. They need a simple vegetable medicine like Sagwa, which acts upon the right, natural principle.

Any one who has any digestive trouble will more readily understand the above explanation if he or she will go to the Kickapoo representative at Frank Kimball's Drug Store and get a trial bottle of Sagwa.

This Sagwa is its own best advocate.
All we are trying to do is to get skeptical, unbelieving, and indifferent people to go and get a trial bottle free, and we will trust Sagwa to do the rest.

Albert Hobbs, who is attending school in the village, came home Saturday, sick with the measles.
O. W. H. Judkins and C. Haskell, blasted rocks on the road near Simon Richardson's, the 31st.
Memorial day! How many sad memories rush to my mind! I well remember the call to arms and how many of the young men that had been my schoolmates enlisted. My own brothers were among the first to enlist. One was wounded in Andersonville 11 months, where he suffered everything but death. A brother-in-law lost his life on the battlefield. It seemed to me the best and the brightest were the ones to go and never return. I recall one young man, who was studying for the ministry, Wesley J. Cummings, who gave up his bright prospects for his country's sake. His dust lies mouldering in a southern grave, unknown and unsung, but not unwept. The younger generation make a holiday of it, but to us who lived and suffered at that time, Memorial days seem like a funeral. Oh! cruel, cruel war.

Hats That Obstruct.
"Will the ladies please remove their hats" would be a most welcome introductory sentence to a great many at the opening of a concert, at a church service or in any place where the speaker or singers are wished to be seen as well as heard.
If the wearers of these large hats as well as some who own these high creations would just stop and think how much space they cover and that those sitting back of them cannot see anything but "hat" they ought to be willing to sacrifice a little and remove them.
Then notice several women, girls sitting side by side, hats interlocked one with the other, what chance is there for those sitting back of this great "bank wall of hats" to see.
In some of the churches around Boston and in other places the ladies are requested to remove their hats and many hope that that same movement will continue to spread.
No doubt everyone would like the style of hats better and think them beautiful if they were not such an obstruction.

BROWNFIELD.
Mr. and Mrs. Babcock and little daughter, of Melton, N. H., are visiting her parents, A. W. Gray and wife.
Berley Brown and wife of Fryeburg, spent Sunday at Milroy Seavey's.
Sidney Linscott, a well to do farmer of West Brownfield, was taken violently insane this week, and was carried to the Insane Asylum at Augusta, by the Seaboard.

A union Memorial service was held at the Universalist church, Sunday afternoon. The G. A. R. and Relief Corps were present and listened to an interesting sermon by the pastor, Rev. A. W. Smith.

LOCKE'S MILLS.

Saved by Blood.
The veterans and friends of Locke's Mills gathered at the Union church on Memorial Sunday, May 30, and listened to a very stirring sermon by Rev. C. L. Banghart of Bethel.
On Monday the A. M. Whitman Post and other veterans escorted by the K. of P.'s and followed by the school children marched from the hotel to the church yard to decorate the graves of the honored dead.
After services at the yard the band led the school to the church door where they opened ranks and the soldiers escorted by the K. of P.'s marched through, while the children saluted the flag. The services at the church were opened by the school singing "The Red, White and Blue," and a recitation by Bertha Lawrence. J. F. Libby then gave a very interesting address which was enjoyed by all. A few humorous remarks were made by J. L. Bowker. The services were closed by the school singing America, after which Comrade D. B. Grant served a treat of lemonade to all.
The music by the Mackintoshquor band was much appreciated and a great deal of credit is due Misses Littlefield and Andrews, also Mrs. Stowell for the way in which the children were trained, and we hope that in the future the teachers and parents will teach the children to love and respect the flag and those who fought and gave their blood to save it.

STATE OF MAINE.

County of Oxford, ss. May 27th, 1909.

Taken on execution, wherein L. Rexford Rounds and Florence B. Rounds, heirs of Waterford in the County of Oxford and State of Maine, Copartners, doing business under the firm name and style of L. R. Rounds & Co., are plaintiffs and Charles D. Haskell, then of Waterford, in said County and state is defendant, and will be sold at public auction, on the eighth day of July A. D. 1909, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the store of L. R. Rounds & Co. in Waterford, in said County, all the right in equity which Charles D. Haskell, of Waterford, in the County of Oxford, had on the thirtieth day of March, A. D. 1909, when the same was attached on the original writ, to redeem the following described, mortgaged real estate, situated on the top of said County, to wit: A certain lot or parcel of land with the buildings thereon and described as follows: Being a part of the place known as the James E. Dudley place, commencing at the James E. Dudley place at the corner of a large rock in the water, and extending said lot, thence north sixty-two degrees east, eight rods and twenty links to a stone wall near the top of the hill; thence south thirty-five degrees east to a stone wall six rods; thence nineteen degrees east, forty-two rods to a spotted oak tree; thence south seventy-seven degrees east to the easterly bound of the land owned by John W. Bates to Harrison Village; thence northerly on the easterly side of said road to the first named bound, containing two and two-thirds acres more or less, with right to draw water from a spring above said lot for the use of one family. Excepting right of way for a cart road across in an easterly direction from said County road to the top of the hill southerly from the buildings. Said real estate is subject to a mortgage given by said Charles D. Haskell, to George S. Pitts, to be recorded in the County of Cumberland, recorded in the Oxford County Registry of Deeds, Book 285, Page 228, on which is said to be due about one hundred and fifty dollars.

Witness my hand and seal of office, this 27th day of May, 1909.

J. MELVIN BARTLETT, Deputy Sheriff

Waterford, May 27th, 1909.

Memorial Services at the Baptist Church.

The G. A. R., Woman's Relief Corps, Co. D, and Sons of Veterans attended the Memorial services at the Baptist church, Sunday, and there was a large attendance, the church being filled. Rev. J. E. Whitmore, pastor of the Baptist church, delivered a Memorial sermon and the music was by Mrs. Harold Anderson, Mrs. J. E. Whitmore, with Maud Pike, organist.

The pulpit was prettily decorated with flags, potted plants, bouquets, and streamers of red, white and blue. Mr. Whitmore said in part, "It gives me great pleasure to welcome you, the Soldiers, the Relief Corps and militia. It also gives me pleasure to have the privilege to address you on this occasion. My text this morning is taken from Psalm 147, 'He hath not dealt so with any nation.' I think we have reason to be proud of such a great nation. I have heard it said and have also read that in view of the expansion of the nation, the sacrifices during the period of strife was not too great, but it makes me shudder to even think of it, so great were the sacrifices of all."

"This land of ours was made for the people, and its history has been so shaped and molded by the one living God, the ruler of the universe. I will not relate all the causes of this war for you all know them well. Out of about 30,000,000 people of this country, 3,000,000 left their vocations, homes, friends, and marched to the front of the fray. This was a time when all were anxiously looking for the outcome of this great conflict. Many were they, who upon entering on the battlefield never returned and thus shed their blood for the cause of this our nation. 'Every year I have not failed to review this history. I have visited Libby prison and other places and have seen the emaciated faces of the prisoners. The time will not come when this event shall be forgotten."

"My older brother died in the war, and well do I remember the mother's tears that were shed for him who died on the battlefield. Although my father died before the war, I feel that I, myself, am a son of a veteran. 'Our nation since that time has made wonderful progress and one of the greatest are our present institutions which have done so much. The stars and stripes have all over the world, in every land and on one of the best of the world, which could not have been so had it not been for the soldiers who so willingly sacrificed their lives for their country."

"Our states are rich in mines, — the treasury of the land, also with its forests. We have an immense output and are coming to the front among the nations of the world. 'You, my brothers, must remember that out of that great army who fought in this war, the ranks are fast thinning off, and that there are only about 120,000 veterans left and none of us here know how soon before our work here will be finished."

"The Woman's Relief Corps are doing a fine work, aiding soldiers by providing institutions so that they shall not be obliged to die at the poor farms. 'As we visit the graves of the soldiers let us leave there sympathy, as well as our bouquets of flowers. God has a hand in our government and has guided us through these years and may the time come when all the kingdoms of the world shall kneel before the Lord, Jesus Christ of Nazareth."

Near Losing His New Auto.

Sanger Maxin, of South Paris, was sitting in a Thomas Flyer automobile, that he had just bought and driven from Boston, near O. B. Merrill's on Maple street, Mechanic Falls, the canvas protection underneath, which was well soaked in oil, caught fire from too close contact with the exhaust pipe and blazed up fiercely. Fortunately Mr. Merrill saw it and his lawn hose being connected he hurried out and turned the water on and extinguished the blaze before much damage was done. Had it happened where water was not handy, the car would probably have been destroyed.

Radcliffe Landed Two.

With the sun shining brightly overhead and the ooz' soaking through thin shoes beneath, several hundred interested fans journeyed to the Haydn farm on Pleasant street Memorial day and witnessed two exceedingly fast ball games, every adverse condition considered.

As the fair grounds could not be secured for that day, manager Leith accepted the next best proposition and did his best to make the conditions pass just for the two games. The popular manager was all right, but that weather man putting out a rain storm just soaked the ground, making the out field a beautiful place for a swimming match when nothing else was doing. Nevertheless everybody overlooked all of these short comings and didn't kick at all over wet feet or mud bespattered shoes; it was only a part of the game, thus everything went off with a flourish at the mystic shrine of the god baseball.

Radcliffe, 5; Hebron, 4.

The closest contest for the day was started at 10.45 A. M. with Radcliffe lined up against Hebron town team. Both clubs presented a bold front and entered the contest with a determination to win. They appeared closely matched in every department; in fact neither team had the game on its side and a late conclusion could be reached until the last player died. The score shows that the teams kept close together throughout the battle, thus presenting a riddle right up to the finish.

Summary—Two-base hits, Harrison, Young, Richardson. Double play, Pike to Stutsevant to Castello. Struck out, Leith by Pike. Stolen bases Radcliffe 2; Pike 5. Stolen bases, Radcliffe 2; Hebron 2. Umpire Harry Libby. Time, 2 h, 5 m. Scorer, Geo. Sanborn.

Afternoon.

Radcliffe, 4; Bryant's Pond, 0.
"Uncle Bill's" smile was certainly good to see while he watched the long string of spectators pick their way gingerly over wet spots to pay real money under the trying conditions. There was a large crowd and seats were at a big premium, but that didn't spoil the fun, as everybody made the best of it and joined heartily in the good natured joking at the expense of the somewhat crest fallen players.

This time Bryant's Pond was the opposing article. These boys made up the West Paris team for several seasons and needed no introduction as their past deeds speak louder than words. Two "grand old men" of the team were missing, namely "Uncle" Bob Shaw and Harry Emery but their places were taken by the younger players. On the whole this aggregation had the regular fighting spirit and to down them "Uncle Bill" and his Radcliffe punchers just dug their toes into the muck and held on.

Bryant's Pond opened the game but didn't carry any danger signals until their fourth inning. Then something started the fire up and things looked like boiling over, because three hits in succession filled the bases with only one man gone and this looked pretty squally for "Uncle Bill's" Radcliffe. But strange things often occur so this was no exception for young Harrison nailed a runner at the plate on a perfect throw, which was one feature for the afternoon; the third runner was forced at the plate thus the visitors opportunity to even things up escaped in this air.

Once in the fifth they came near smashing the goose eggs when Pike laced his two bagger into the center field crook but Yang fished it out; re-layed to Harrison and he in turn snapped it home to Lanan, pinning N. Rowe for an out. This was another clever play and deserves particular notice.

Radcliffe didn't commence to cut ice until her fourth inning, then Leith's sacrifice and Patton's lead home to first base gave the two runs as a lucky start. Their second installment came during the fifth when Beare slammed out a hit; Lanan started on Seams' error at first then stealing second. Cy Young came in for another hit scoring Beare and Lanan, which ended the run-getting for the day.

Fred Lanan, the new back stop, put up a gilt edge game, handling everything perfectly. A pretty catch of a foul behind the ropes in the side line was made by a neat exhibition of his work. "Uncle" Bill didn't appear to over-exert himself when the sliding got down thin, especially in the fourth when Bryant Pond crowded the bases full on one out, then Bill passed along some crooked ones as a reminder. Gammon, Lovell, King and Lafrance worked hard in the mud and mire, doing hard playing at every opportunity. King and Lafrance were in unceasing positions and often hunted through the paws for the ball batted in their territory.

OPERATION HER ONLY CHANCE

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Adrian, Ga.—"I suffered untold misery from a female weakness and disease, and I could not stand more than a minute at a time. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death. One day I was reading how other women had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and decided to try it. Before I had taken one bottle I was better, and now I am completely cured."—LINA V. HENRY, Route No. 3, Adrian, Ga.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration. If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

Ross L. Bickford of Boston is at his mother's, Mrs. Emma Bickford's. His family is in Orono. Mr. Bickford has not been here for two years.

Prof. Verne M. Whitman, principal of the Milford N. H. high school, has been re-elected for another year with an increase of salary. The salary for the coming year will be $1300. The school has greatly improved since he took the principalship and school officers and citizens are highly pleased with the good work accomplished. The position was offered him, without any solicitation on his part and for his efforts in building up the high school at Peterboro, which is in the same county. On the evening of the 25th of May, the high school chorus of 150 voices gave its annual concert to a large and cultured audience. The singing by Mr. and Mrs. Whitman was a "hit." The several papers say: "The Pointer" had the following: "Mr. Whitman's Bandolero song was especially fine. The tempo was a stage star." One stated that Mrs. W. sang "beautifully," and the Manchester Union, among other things, that the school also has an inspiration in the fact that the principal Prof. Verne M. Whitman is gifted with a superior musical talent, and is a leader in anything he undertakes for the betterment of the school, he so ably presides over." Mr. Whitman delivers the Memorial address this year at Milford. After the spring term closes, about the middle of June, he will spend the summer vacation at "Cusseta" cottage on the lake here.

E. L. Tebbets.

After a critical illness of several weeks E. L. Tebbets of Auburn, owner of the spool manufactory at Locke's Mills, died Friday morning at 6 o'clock at his home in Auburn. Mr. Tebbets was stricken with acute indigestion the first of last month but although apparently recovering from this trouble so that he was able to resume work, was soon taken down with meningitis and for the past four weeks his condition was most serious.

Mr. Tebbets was born in Lisbon in 1849, being the son of John G. and Clara A. Bucknam-Tebbetts. He was graduated from the Maine Agricultural and Mechanical Institute of Technology, and upon completing his studies came to Lewiston and worked until 1870 as a civil engineer. He then went into railroad work, being a road agent and assistant engineer for over five years for the Boston and Maine as general accountant. For six months he was civil engineer for a railroad in California.

In 1882 he became associated with his father who had started a spool mill at Locke's Mills in 1867 and since then has made that his business. Since the death of his father in 1892, Mr. Tebbets had the entire responsibility of the business. Mr. Tebbets had been town treasurer in Greenwood for a number of years and served on the board of selectmen in that town for three years. In politics he was always a Democrat. Mr. Tebbets is survived by a wife, formerly Lizzie G. Merriam of Augusta, whom he married in 1873, and three sons, Charles B. Tebbets, superintendent of the spool mill, E. Lester Tebbets, jr., a sophomore at E. L. H. S., and Don Tebbets, a pupil at the Webster Grammar school. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Nora Libby and Lella Tebbets, both of Auburn.

Indian Corn Meal

A generation ago, necessity compelled a very large part of the rugged population of this country to subsist on corn meal. White flour was a luxury and reserved for state occasions—and cake. The taste for corn bread has to be acquired in these times, but in the pioneer days, dislike of it was confined to the young, already beginning to be influenced by the approval of a higher standard of living of which cake is one of the inevitable harbingers.

This new generation seemed to think that the use of corn meal rather than flour was conclusive evidence of poverty, and many discarded it when it was much better than bread made from wheat.

With the universal use of wheat flour corn meal having fallen into desuetude, has come improved methods of rendering it attractive to the sight. The bleaching process, lately forbidden by the government, was probably the last discovery which proved detrimental to the public health, but pleasing to the eye. Before that, we had had nothing more harmful than loads of terra alba, shipped from the mills in Tennessee, Georgia and other southern states, for no other reason than that terra alba costs but twenty-five per cent as much as flour, and corns flour prices when properly concealed.

The result of this craze for adulterating, or "repairing" food products, upon which the country entered a score of years ago, is that nine-tenths of the population is, in one way or another, infected with stomach trouble. Not a little of this trouble can properly be laid to the flour itself, though a great deal of this is due to the manner in which bread is made.

In the days in which the workingman subsisted chiefly on corn bread—and bacon—indigestion was classed as a rare disease. Appendicitis had not then been invented. During the Civil war decade, there yet survived women who could take a cupful of corn meal, a bit of water, a pinch of salt and a portable oven, and at the psychological moment turn out a circle of hot corn pone over which the immortal gods would have raved.

But the mortals of those days apologized for it for corn pone was the hall mark of poverty. Those who had stoves made of johnny cakes, and then what was left over from the mush was fried. There are men living today who would walk miles for a mess of fried mush.

Some twenty years ago the government made the attempt to create a taste on the continent of Europe for corn bread, but it was not a signal success, a fact which is to be regretted, for it would have solved one of the living problems in Europe. But if you are unable to induce Europeans to like corn bread, there is no reason why there should be a revival of its use in the United States.

It is one of the most wholesome and nutritious foods we have, and its cost is about a third that of wheat flour, even if it present high prices of corn. There are many poor people in this country to-day for whom, in spite of the elevation of the standard of living, a wheat corner will have no terrors. Corn meal agrees too well with their purses and their stomachs.

Long ago the Scotch learned this.

The sturdy old Scotchman must be amused at the recent "discoveries" that oatmeal is the best food in the world. Our scientific men have been making experiments which prove that Americans eat too much fat and grease and not enough cereals. The Scotchman says: "Look at our nation as proof. The sturdiest nation on earth." Still we have one good point to make. We make better oatmeal than the Scotch.

They buy Quaker Oats and consider it the leader of all oatmeals to be had anywhere. Quaker Oats is sold in family size packages at 25c or at 30c for the package containing a piece of fine china. The regular size package sells at 10c. Follow the example of the Scotch; eat a Quaker Oats breakfast every day.

All grocers sell Quaker Oats.

EAST PARIS.

The Corn Crop.
I hope every farmer in the eastern states will plant a piece of yellow field corn. It is not too late now. It is not more than half an acre for the small farmer it will be a great help.

While the western farmer has been getting rich planting corn, sowing and harvesting grain he has been sowing poverty among eastern farmers who have to pay such high prices for these products. We have the soil and the climate for successful corn growing. Those who plant sweet corn intending to buy their grain feed for the proceeds rarely ever have any of the money left when winter comes. The price is too low in proportion to that of the grain feed.

To keep crows off the corn piece I have a device that has been successful for the past four or five years. I strew a little lead plaster over each hill of corn, a teaspoonful will suffice. It can be applied either before or after the corn comes up. The crows probably think it is poison and they don't dare to test it in order to find out. Crows are among our most useful birds and ought to be fed instead of scared. I recently passed over a field where hardly a green spear of grass could be seen on an acre. It was literally "ridicled" with holes where the crows had dug out the big white worms.

Grant Royal has been successful with five liters of pigs.

A World Language.

One May Come into Existence. Why a Language Dies.

In an essay on the inadequacy of speech, the inadequacy being that which has reference to the expression of ideas, not to the expression of emotions, Dr. Charles W. Super has pointed out that when a language (like Hebrew) has reached a stereotyped stage and the people speaking it continue to advance in thought there is nothing left but to discard it for another.

Matens Aurelius, it may be remembered, felt that Greek was better adapted to give utterance to the inmost thought of his soul than his native Latin, and there are instances in our day of writers who have habitually expressed themselves in some language other than their mother tongue.

Ultimately, perhaps, there will be some world language capable of expressing the thoughts and compatible with the psychology and temperaments of all people.

Even now the term articulate speech includes many sounds that are not vocal. In fact, the large majority are only modifications of vocal utterance. The most peculiar of these occurs in the language of the Hottentot, who employs sounds produced by inspiration or by means of the air in the mouth. These sounds are four in number and have been described as the "interjection of annoyance on the part of the owner of a cock, the giving of a kiss and the sound of encouragement, 'ok,' to a tired horse." They can only be learned from the natives by direct communication, since it is as impossible to represent them graphically as it is the howl of a lyons or the croak of a frog.

One writer has maintained that they are the bridge over the gulf between the speech of man and the cries of animals and the primeval utterances of the human language was developed. No one tongue employs all the sounds which the human voice is able to produce or even a majority.

The number for English is placed at about forty, but this is not the case for all that are in use. Tuscan, Italian and Finnish, which are rich in vowels, employ few sounds, but Russian, with its weird combinations of consonants, employs many.—[London Post.

Most farmers are wasteful in the way they treat their farm harnesses and machinery. The costly harnesses are left out where the dust will settle on them; and how rarely are they oiled! Save the way with machinery. A few drops of oil at the right time will save a lot of grinding in the bearings. Money saved in this way is money earned, and better than earned, for saving is more of a gift than working, ten times over.

"Old Ben Bolt"

By MYRA NORTHCLIFF.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

His name wasn't "Old Ben Bolt," but everybody called him that, and strangers accepted it on the spot as singularly appropriate, for Captain Jim Stabolt's honest, kind blue eyes, his brown face and closely curling hair and his masterful yet good natured mouth made him indeed seem the embodiment of the famous "Ben Bolt of the salt sea gale."

He wasn't old at all, though he thought himself aged and beyond all the dreams of youth because he had just turned thirty-five. But then he had always had an abnormal modesty about his own masculine charms.

His head, albeit of pepper and salt, was filled with practical good sense that had brought him up from fisherman to superintendent and part owner of the Grantson company's big fleet of smacks.

He had his office in the cubby of a water stilled shanty at the end of the pier, and its window looked directly across at a certain young woman named Kate, dealing out candy, oranges and cheap cigars to the rolling crews of the boats.

There was a standing joke among the boys how the smoking habit took hold of everybody after he saw Kate.

It never got to her ears, though, for, notwithstanding the candy and cigars, there was a fine little line of reticence about the girl over which no one ever stepped, not even Hank Raynor, the vainest and most impudent fellow that ever trod a schooner's deck. But her pretty blushes and shining eyes gave the clew to her preference, and Raynor, who frequently consumed his entire wait buying a cigar, could not have been said to discourage the impression.

It is true the boys joked, but the majority of them swore as well, for the handsome Raynor bore no immaculate reputation among them.

"Cuss it!" said Dick Pearsall, mate of the Osprey schooner, savagely one night. "Why is it a woman can never see an inch from her nose when she's daffy on a man?"

"Marryin' takes that out of 'em, though," laughed old Captain Brown, who was on honorable drydock after fifty years of cod and halibut. "Marryin'!" Raynor looks like a marryin' man, don't he? I ain't no masher myself, but I tell you that smart is just tryin' to show off before us fellows. Marry her! Even if he wanted to he ain't fit to wipe her old shoes on!"

Nobody dissented. There were tongues in the fishing port that did not hesitate to declare that Raynor's skill as a fisherman was far inferior to the art with which he could wreck coasters for a living when the owners got tired of paying insurance and decided that it was time to collect some interest.

"All the same, he told me it was fixed up between 'em," insisted Captain Brown. "That's tellin', I s'pose, but he didn't say as there was anything private about it."

Unnoticed by the men, Captain Jim Stabolt had come up in time to catch the last words. He stopped a moment in the shadow of a column. When he moved on his face looked gray and drawn in the uncertain light.

"Get ready to take the Osprey and the Lucinda out next tide," he said evenly. "We'll have 'em unloaded in three hours more and ready for sea again."

He went back, and the group broke up. Pearsall, as he turned, caught a glimpse of his superior's face and wondered vaguely if "the boss" were ill.

With a fine sense of honor, Captain Jim himself had refrained from a look of word that might compromise Kate, but the memory of a chance touch of her fingers once when she passed back his change still sent a thrill over him. Since that day she had grown under his eyes to be the one desirable thing of his life.

He knew enough of Raynor to despise the man. Time and again he had all but prayed he might get actual cause for interference. Now the shattering of the dream seemed less his blunder than a crime.

A week afterward Kate's old father was struck by a falling block and laid on his bed, helpless for life. Her mother fell ill of typhoid. The superintendent saw the bloom fade from the girl's cheeks, to return only when Raynor appeared, and that in a nervous flush. He grew hot and cold alternately at the air of careless proprietorship the latter had lately assumed. Then suddenly the man announced that he was going away.

"Thank you for a ship," Captain Jim heard Kate confide to another girl. "It's a schooner running out of South Amboy for Norfolk, and the owners have promised him a raise in a few months, and then, if father and mother are able to be moved—"

Captain Jim lost the rest, but a sharp thrust went through him, whether of anguish or relief he could not have told. A month later came news of a shipwreck on the New Jersey coast.

The dispatches said openly that there were suspicious circumstances about the wreck, but as the captain, Hank Raynor, was announced as among those drowned it was impossible to do much investigating.

On that very day Kate failed to appear at the pier.

Day by day for a blank, wretched week Captain Jim faced the empty stand opposite his window. Then he went down to the waterside street and found there destitution, at once pitiful and reassuring.

"It isn't your love I am asking for, dear," he said to her gently as at the end of a half hour he found himself holding her trembling fingers and smoothing her hair. "I couldn't expect that. But if you will give me what is left, the right to take care of you and yours, God knows it will be a precious trust."

He felt himself more than ever before to be "Old Ben Bolt" as he said this.

Captain Jim had no fine phrases, but months of effort had made him a marvel of self control. He stood quite still, though every nerve was tense with longing to clasp the slim little figure to his breast. In fact, he hardly dared breathe when at last Kate dropped her head against his arm for acquiescence and broke into soft sobbing. A guess at what was in his heart, he told himself, would have frightened her out of his reach forever.

The six weeks that followed were a mixture of paradise and purgatory to him. It was hard, indeed, to play the decorous, fatherly lover when his whole soul cried out for the touch of her lips on his and every swish of her dress against him set his pulses throbbing. But he did it, and well.

His paradise proved a fool's, however. Walking along the main street one evening, with Kate on his arm, Hank Raynor's unmistakable self passed the two almost at elbow touch. There was a livid scar along the apparition's cheek. Kate did not see him, but a pang like death went through "Old Ben Bolt." The sight of that handsome, devil-may-care face seemed to sound his doom.

During the next four and twenty hours Captain Jim worked out his bitter problem. Cost what it might to his own self respect, he would tell Kate the truth as he knew it concerning Hank Raynor. He could do that if she had been his young sister, but in honor he must free her from her promise to himself.

He had thought of a way out of her financial difficulties, but it was not necessary she should know that yet or, indeed, the cost to his own heart of these last few months.

"I have come to give you back what I asked that first night, Kate, but I must tell you something it will be hard for you to bear," he said to her hoarsely as he stood in the little parlor, whose very plainness had grown dear to him.

A flush ran into Kate's cheek, but it died there, leaving a white line around her lips. "Old Ben Bolt" gripped the back of the chair in front of him.

"I suppose you have seen Raynor?" he went on.

Kate's color rushed back in a rosy flood. Her eyes drooped for an instant; then, shy, but brave, they looked straight into Captain Jim's own.

"Yes, I have seen him—and his wife," she answered, with a little laugh. "He brought her from Philadelphia. It—it was a good thing I had found out before that—that I didn't care most for him, after all, wasn't it, you dear 'Old Ben Bolt'?"

The room reeled round Captain Jim. Out of its chaos Kate's face grew flushed and smiling still, but with suspiciously luminous eyes. Then did this "Ben Bolt" give a great gasp as the truth burst upon him. He took two long strides with outstretched arms, and a second later Kate was quite lost in the big, warm embrace her dark hour had taught her was her heart's true haven.

"Taking Something For It."

"Kleptomania," remarked the physician, "is a disease."

"I guess that's right," rejoined the plain clothes detective. "I've noticed that its victims are always taking something for it."—Houston Post.

"In a Different Class."

"I hear, Mike, that your wife has gone into society. Has she become a clubwoman yet?"

"Indeed an' she has not got into that class. She still uses a flatiron, sor."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The New Spring Hat.

"What is that I see before me?" Asked the poor, bewildered man. "It's a flowerpot inverted."

"Or a new dishpan. A fancy market basket. Or a brand new chimney pot?"

"No, sir, it is not!" answered, "Indeed, sir, it is not!"

"What is it, then?" he queried. "And why is it so gay?"

Why decked with such fine rigging? Oh, what is it, dear, I pray? I suppose it has some meaning. I suppose some use it bears. Is it some barbaic vase, dear? Then why isn't it in pairs?"

But she answered, oh, so coldly: "Pry, what are you driving at? Can't you see this thing of beauty? Is my stylish new spring hat?"

"And must I go with that horror?" "Yes," she said, "for it is bought!" But she shrieked as he fell prostrate. He had fainted at the thought. —Baltimore American.

Diplomatic Rewards.

The rewards for conspicuous service rendered by our ambassadors and ministers are in no sense commensurate with those received by the representatives of other governments. With the other great powers, if a diplomat renders some, notably valuable service, such as preventing a destructive war or securing a treaty of vast political or commercial importance, he may be given a better post, be promoted in rank, have bestowed upon him some coveted decoration or even be made a peer of the realm. An American who performs a similar service receives official congratulations and gratifying expressions of appreciation from his government, but there the reward ceases. But there remains, of course, the best incentive to superior exertion—the satisfaction of doing one's duty.

NORTH PARIS.

Remembrance Teachers, Alumni and Scholars. There will be a reunion of alumni, teachers and all scholars who have ever attended school at North Paris village, July 7th. It is expected that there will be a large gathering and a good time is anticipated. It was voted to have a picnic dinner for all scholars of the past or present of whatever age, and all teachers and friends.

Committee of arrangements: Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Ringwood, Lella Chase, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. McAllister, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Field, Mrs. James Ripley, D. H. Curtis, Llewellyn Lowe and Irwin Lowe. Come and talk over old times and enjoy a good time.

Mrs. Evie Lappin spent the night of May 26th with her sister, Mrs. M. S. Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. Abner Benson, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Dow and Mrs. Sarah Starbird visited at America Andrews', May 25th. Mrs. E. E. Field was pleasantly surprised on her birthday, May 26th, by receiving a shower of postcards. In the evening several of the neighbors called and a very pleasant evening was spent.

BRYANT'S FOND.

M. M. Hathaway is painting Ansel Dudley's buildings.

Mr. Pratt of Portland was a guest of Ansel Dudley, over Sunday.

Rev. C. D. McKenzie was in South Paris, Wednesday, on business.

Lucy V. Frost and Della Giles, spent Memorial day at their home in Norway.

The dance given by the young people of Franklin Grange, Saturday evening, was well attended.

There will be special meetings at the Baptist church, beginning next Sunday. Evangelist S. A. Evans, will assist Rev. C. D. McKenzie.

Oliver Lamb, who has been working for Mrs. R. C. Davis the past two months, has gone to her home on Zircon Hill, and Della Berryman of Greenwood, has taken her place.

Leon E. Truesdell, principal of the High school, spent Memorial day in Providence, R. I. Emma Leighton of the lower school, went to Westbrook for Memorial day.

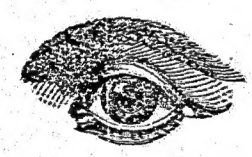

There has been talk of organizing a branch of the I. O. E. F. in town. It will be remembered that Norway has a large and flourishing organization, and now Bryant Pond bids fair to fall in a close second. Anyway the bird hunters and other hunters have become very numerous in town this spring.

The Memorial exercises on Sunday passed very pleasantly with extra music by the quartet, and an excellent sermon by Rev. C. D. McKenzie. The exercises on Monday were well attended, and the address by Rev. J. H. Little of South Paris, was very good, also the singing. Mr. Little can speak of the Civil war from personal experience. The Mackintosh band of Norway, furnished good music.

OXFORD.

Decoration Day at Oxford.

Saturday, May 19th, was opened as Decoration day at Oxford. The day itself was not one to inspire enthusiasm, as what water remained after the rain of Tuesday, continued to fall from early dawn until 10 p. m. But nothing like a little water or wind could dampen the ardor of the Veterans, the ladies of the Relief Corps, or the school children, and even the Governor himself seemed to enjoy the day, as he certainly was at his best. The band comes in for a just measure of praise. The playing was more than good, and was an incentive to keep the little folks in line, and any parade of that extent without the services of a band is more or less of a frost.

The parade started promptly on time, and headed by the band, followed by the members of T. A. Roberts Post, nearly 100 school children, teachers and members of the Relief Corps, marched through Pleasant street to King street, to the cemetery in rear of Congregational church. The Decoration day ceremonies were conducted by the officers of T. A. Roberts Post, and a detail of comrades assisted by young ladies of the school, planted flags and wreaths upon the graves of our dead comrades. At the completing of the service, the line was reformed and marched to High street, to Riverside cemetery. The services were repeated, and the line of march again formed, and proceeded through Back, High and Pleasant streets, to starting point at Robinson hall. As the hall was reached, the band wheeled to one side, the Veterans opened ranks, and the school children marched up stairs to the dining hall. And such a dinner! Every child in that bunch had his or her appetite with them, and added by a good digestion, enjoyed themselves as only children can. Their happy laughter and bright eager faces, would cheer the most dyspeptic of the blues. When the lunch was served, and about 200 enjoyed the hospitality of the Ladies Relief Corps, the Veterans collected in groups for a social smoke and chat, while the children romped and played in the school yard.

At 2 p. m. the line was again formed, and marched to the Congregational church. On arrival at the church, the Veterans again opened ranks and allowed the children, as their guests, to march into, and occupy the body of the church. Every seat was taken and the band rendered their selections from the gallery. The Governor was escorted to his stand under the stars and stripes and regimental colors. After a selection of the band, prayer by Rev. Mr. Merrill, and singing by the choir, Julius Fuller of East Oxford, in a neat and well timed speech, spoke of the boyhood and school days of Mr. Fernald, his manliness of character and honesty of purpose, of his journey through the house of Representatives and Senate, and finally introduced Governor Fernald to his audience. The welcome accorded Governor Fernald was genuine and spontaneous, and he promptly acknowledged it. Governor Fernald said he had great respect and admiration for the town of Oxford, and he certainly made good his remark, as he gave us the best address heard at Oxford for many years. He not only showed himself master of his subject, but he left out the large words so common among many speakers, that might plague an ordinary man. His words were well chosen, his sentences neatly constructed, his delivery clean cut, and penetrated to all parts of the house.

Among other things, the Governor reminded us that we should pay our respects to the living heroes, as well as honor the dead. He compared the greed of the wars of Europe with our war of rebellion. In the wars of the old world men fought for conquest, power and acquisitions of territory. In the war of 1861 to 1865, was a war of humanity, and the better man, the better the soldier. He compared the Republicanism of Maryland and Massachusetts in 1700 and 1800. He also reminded us that while the stars and stripes, and the battle flags are dear to us, the Veterans should be our pride, as they are the remnants of the actors in the great drama that made possible our free independent and liberty loving nation. 171 noble sons were the share Oxford gave in the venerable struggle. He also spoke of the debt of gratitude we owe the Veterans of the Spanish war, and that all Veterans were deserving the nation's love and respect. He mentioned the numerous changes during the 19th century. That our individual liberty made every man a king, in the land of the free and the home of the brave, the most magnificent country on the face of the earth. The Governor did not miss the children and made a hit with them from the start. Governor Fernald was frequently applauded during the delivery of his speech.

At close of oration, the band played a selection, the choir and audience sang America, and then the Governor, standing between two flags, held an informal reception. The school children marched up and each one received a genuine hand shake and pleasant word from the Governor.

Wilbur Gammon had the honor of being the first to shake the hand of Governor Fernald. Wilbur says that if Governor Fernald is ever nominated for President, he will surely vote for him. It was a red letter day in the lives of the school children, and one they will long remember. After the children came the Ladies Relief Corps, citizens and Veterans.

Mr. Robinson kindly consented to close the mill, and the day was opened in a fitting manner. Come again, Governor Fernald.

Memorial Services.
Rev. J. H. Little of South Paris, preached the Memorial service to the G. A. R., on Sunday, May 30 at 2 p. m., in the Congregational church. Mr. Little is a most able and accurate talker. His topics and ideas are introduced in a logical sequence, making his discourse agreeable and easily understood. Mr. Little's sermon was well built, substantial, and his illustrations very apt. He brought back to the Veteran's mind of the battles and incidents that occurred during the war. Mr. Little interwove the facts, need, and causes of the war, into the scripture lesson which he introduced. The audience which completely filled the church, listened with the closest attention, and many remarked that they could have enjoyed another hour.

Concert and Ball.
Do not forget the concert and ball in Robinson hall on Wednesday evening, June 9th. The concert is furnished by the Oxford orchestra, assisted by local talent, and is for the benefit of the graduating class, 1909, O. H. S. The same orchestra will furnish music for the dance. The Colby college orchestra is one of the best musical organizations in the low price of admission should fill the house. No reserved seats.

Charles Durell was in town over Sunday. Alton Delano took in the ball game in Lewiston, Monday.

Everett Cook and Henry Delano, of Bates college, were home Saturday and Sunday.

W. H. Thomas of East Oxford, is at work on the extension of Winfield Gammon's store.

Mrs. Grace Seiders of Portland, spent Saturday and Monday with her mother, Mrs. Hattie Farnham.

Bertha Karanough of Portland, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. A. J. Karanough, of High street.

Joseph Robinson came home for a brief visit with his parents, returning Monday night to Andover.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Stowe of Portland, made a brief stay with Mrs. Stowe's parents, over Sunday.

Most of the young people attended the ball games, Monday, at Norway, and the Bowdoin-Bates game in Lewiston.

Mrs. Mary Hazen of Bolster's Mills, made a brief call on her many friends, Decoration day, and incidentally helped the ladies of the Relief Corps serve their dinner.

John L. Dyer, principal of the O. H. school, spent his vacation, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, at Oxford, at the home of his wife, Mrs. Ada R. Dyer.

The examination of pupils from the rural schools who intend to enter the High school this fall, will be held in the High school room at Oxford, on Saturday June 19th, at 2 p. m.

Robert M. Pierce, of Bates college, supplied the pulpit at the M. E. church, on Sunday, May 30. Mr. Pierce preached a wonderfully good sermon, and his talk was very interesting to his hearers. The church members were loud in their praise of his work, and Mr. Pierce will certainly be welcome at any time.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Lord visited her sister, Mrs. Harry Sawin, at North Waterford last week.

Several from this vicinity attended the ball at North Waterford, the 26th, and reported a large crowd and a fine time.

SOUTH WATERFORD.

Observance of Memorial Day.

The observance of Memorial Day for decorating the graves of our deceased soldiers was under the direction of J. M. Knight Woman's Relief Corps of North Waterford, several comrades of Leppien Post of East Stoneham and resident G. A. R. comrades of South Waterford assisting.

At an early hour on Saturday, May 29, the Relief Corps and G. A. R. comrades solemnized the service of decoration at the cemetery in North Waterford, in which they were attended by many citizens of that section of the town. At the close of the ceremonies a large detachment of the corps accompanied by several comrades proceeded in carriages to the South village arriving about 12 o'clock, where they were met by a committee of resident comrades and ladies consisting of W. W. Watsoe of Harry Post, Norway, and Mrs. Watson; George H. Billings of Farragut Post, Bridgton, and Mrs. Billings; Granville Fernald of John A. Logan Post, Harrison; John Atherton and Bessie Hamlin, and invited to the shelter of Grange hall as it was constantly threatening to rain till past the noon hour. In the dining hall of the Grange the visiting guests and their friends of the local committee joined in the delights of a sumptuous picnic dinner, the company being as follows:—Mrs. Martha H. Black, President; J. M. Knight W. R. C., and official staff: Mrs. Grace Elliott, S. V. P.; Mrs. Myra M. Patrick, Treas.; Mrs. Lizzie Jewett, Com.; Mrs. Caroline Plummer, A. C.; Mrs. Emily Paige, Mrs. Helen Nason, Mrs. May Rice, George Cobb, Guard; Susie Littlefield, Minnie McKee, Mrs. Bickford and Mrs. Lilla Rice of Custer W. R. C. of Lewiston; Stephen McAllister, Commander of Leppien Post, and Comrades Henry Plummer, Silas McKee and M. W. Bickford of Post 40, Dept. of Mass. of Maine.

At 1.30 p. m. a procession was formed at the hall and under the escort of the W. R. C. proceeded by its color guard, the decorating committee of comrades marched to Elmvaig cemetery and held a solemn service according to the Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic. Rev. G. W. Sias, resident pastor, delivered a brief address upon the subject of the patriotic services of the American soldier in all wars, and the blessings of the living to them to the people of the nation as citizens. After the decoration of graves, a brief call to order at the gate was had for the conclusion of the formal exercises of the day, consisting of reading of President Lincoln's Gettysburg address by Comrade Granville Fernald and singing America by all.

On the return to the hall as the visiting guests were ready to depart on another tour of decoration at the Bissetown cemetery, there was a cordial interchange of expressions of thanks for mutual courtesies and hospitality for all. The patriotic spirit evinced by the members of J. M. Knight W. R. C. on this, their first public memorial service in decoration with flags and flowers the resting places of the soldier dead.

Memorial services, May 30, was appropriately observed by preaching a memorial discourse by pastor G. W. Sias, on the theme, "The call of our patriot dead." Select music by the choir: Doxology; Chorus of Liberty, Nagoli; One Ounce of the Gray, Orr; Gather the Cherished Ones, Pollock; America.

The ponds were perceptibly raised by the last week's rain storm.

Frank Wilber is partially recovering from a late period of sickness, is again prostrated and confined to his bed by illness.

Helen and Marguerite Briggs of Pittsburg, Pa., are guests for the summer at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Noble. They are granddaughters of the late John C. Gerry of this village.

HARRISON.

Memorial Day.

The Memorial day exercises were much enjoyed by all. The John A. Logan Post school children and citizens marched from the hall headed by the Woodmen's band from Bridgton to the cemetery where appropriate exercises were held and graves decorated. At the conclusion of the ceremonies the procession proceeded to the Congregational church where the following program was listened to with much interest:

We old boys..... The Mozart Male Quartet Prayer..... Rev. C. N. Davis
Lincoln's address at Gettysburg..... Read by Rev. C. N. Davis
Reading, Rest, soldier, rest..... Arthur Laby
Memorial Address..... Prof. H. G. Clement
Singing, America..... Led by quartet Benediction..... Rev. Mr. Davis

The quartet was composed of Walter Dudley, 1st tenor; George Flint, 2d tenor; Lincoln M. Burnham, 1st bass; Mr. Doughty, 2d bass. The principal feature of this service was the very interesting Memorial address by Prof. H. G. Clement, the principal of Bridgton academy.

Dinner was served in the vestry below to a good number.
